Announcement

New Editorial Leadership for Election Law Journal

The Founding Editors of Election Law Journal, Dan Lowenstein and Rick Hasen, are stepping down at the end of 2010. We have been extraordinarily lucky to have had a team of their caliber and stature at the helm of the Journal for almost a decade, and we are grateful for their leadership.

We are pleased to announce that Paul Gronke, PhD, Professor of Political Science at Reed College, and Director, Early Voting Information Center, in Portland, Oregon, and Daniel P. Tokaji, JD, Professor of Law at The Ohio State University, Moritz College of Law, in Columbus, Ohio, have taken on the challenge of editorship of the Journal into its new exciting phase.

Dr. Gronke founded the Early Voting Information Center at Reed College as a non-partisan research center dedicated to new systems of voting. He specializes in American politics, elections, public opinion, and methodology. Prof. Tokaji is the Associate Director of the Election Law @ Moritz project. His scholarship addresses questions of political equality, racial justice, and the role of the federal courts in American democracy, with a special focus on election administration.

Our Editorial Board has been extremely active and supportive of ELJ and we are grateful for their ongoing efforts. It is now time to move the Journal forward, and we look forward to the strong continuing commitment of our Board, reviewers, and authors.
